

2 July 2010

To whom it may concern,

As an instructor in the communication department at Brigham Young University-Idaho, I have had the opportunity to have Rebecca Thompson in class. Her academic abilities teamed with her leadership skills place her as a standout in the classroom and, I believe, will serve her well as she continues her pursuits.

Rebecca is a good student capable of learning concepts and applying them to assigned tasks in appropriate and meaningful ways. As a writer, she has the ability to provide useful, competent and productive outcomes.

She can positively influence associates through her effective leadership and communication. I trust that she can add value to an organization and that her professionalism and desire for success will continue. I see her as well positioned to make a positive impact in the world.

I recommend Rebecca as being an effective communicator and leader and as being a quality individual.

Ryan S. Hales
Brigham Young University-Idaho
Communication department adjunct faculty member

Spori 114
Rexburg, Idaho 83460
halesr@byui.edu